At the Reunion

"How are you, captain? What a joy To meet again, old seldier boy! How stronge it is that you and I Are in the "verterans" home" to die, My face is changed and older grown, And yours I never would have known, But for the seas upon your cheek. You got that day at Battle Creek.

Come out upon the grassy pot! Your crutches? Bless me! I forcet You were a cripple. And my arm Hangs powerless to do you harm. Let's alk about the glorr pinin. And ught the battles o'er again. The mystery of the buried years and flud our one rellef—in tears.

Methinks I hear as on that day
The bugier's call Away! Away!
And watch the sunocams laughing the
Along tise barrel of each gin.
The April, and the perfumed air
Makes all the laudscape bright and fair,
Without the birst of shot and shell
That shook the earth when Richmond fair

"I see once more our gallant Lee Ride at the head of cavalry. And Fitahugh, Gordon and Longstreet Bring up the columns all complete, Alas! Alas! we are undone! Our cause is lost, our city von! This fact alone devoid of shell Made broken hearts when Bichmood in

"We must submit and calmly wait—
Whatever is will be our fare.
We knew no fears in years gone by:
I think it happiness to die.
To follow Jackson to his rest.
And learn why soot should think it best.
To bury deen with shot and shell.
Our tenderest hopes when Bichmond is.
